A Peony Check-List

Including the Leading Varieties of Peonies of which Authentic Descriptions can be Found in Horticultural Literature

PREFACE.

To the Members of the American Peony Society and the Peony-Loving Public:

Speaking for the Committee on Nomenclature of the American Peony Society and the Cornell Experiment Station, I wish to bear testimony to the difficult character of the task undertaken by Mr. Coit involved in the attempt to grapple with the much-confused problem of peony nomenclature. The accompanying check-list is the first step in the progress of this great work—the magnitude of which can only be appreciated by intimate acquaintance with the mass of detail and the amount of literature to be examined. However, a beginning has been made. The Committee on Nomenclature was fortunate in being able to cooperate with the Experiment Station, and the Experiment Station was fortunate in finding a man willing and equipped for the work. A large collection of peonies has been gathered—and here again we must recognize the liberality of the donors,—set in systematic order for examination and will afford in the near future we trust an unparalleled opportunity for study. I hope that originators and introducers of peonies will aid the work by forwarding specimen plants as opportunity affords. This check list is neither complete nor perfect. It is sent out for the twofold purpose of giving a fairly comprehensive and accurate presentation of references to peony names and pictures, and making some attempt at a standardized method of spelling. Mr. Coit and those associated will welcome criticism and suggestions. Either will manifest interest in the enterprise, and this is vital.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN CRAIG.

Committee on Nomenclature:

JOHN CRAIG, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., Chairman.

C. J. MALOY, (Ellwanger & Barry), Rochester, N. Y.

JOHN A. CHARLTON, Rochester, N. Y.

J. F. ROSENFIELD, West Point, Neb.

A. H. FEWKES, Secretary American Peony Society, Newton Highlands, Mass.

PEONY LIST.

INTRODUCTORY CHAPTER.

The two chief purposes of the peony investigation are: (1) to bring order out of the confusion which exists in regard to the names of varieties, and (2) to offer simple but complete and accurate descriptions for the short and unsatisfactory descriptions of the earlier writers. The information which is being gathered in connection with this work falls naturally into two classes. viz., that which is gathered from books, periodicals, manuscripts, correspondence, etc., and that which is obtained from direct observation of the plants themselves. The facts presented in this check-list belong to the first mentioned class. It is intended to publish a later bulletin containing all the facts gathered from the plants themselves.

Every blooming season, scores of new seedlings receive names, many of which instead of being new have already been used over and over again with increasing confusion. This check-list should act as a guide to prevent mistakes of this kind in future. It should also serve as a standard for spelling in peony nomenclature. The spelling of the varietal names of peonies is surely in a distressingly bad condition. An average list received by us from a well known peony grower contained 104 names, 30 of which were incorrectly spelled. In nearly every case in this check-list the earliest authentic publication has been adopted as the correct spelling.

This check-list also indicates all those varieties which have been found to be illustrated, the place where the picture may be found, and states whether the illustration is a half-tone or a colored plate.

The success of an old variety may be estimated to some extent by a study of this list. Old varieties which have been mentioned many times in print and are represented by many plots in the Cornell Experiment (which indicates that they are today offered for sale by many nurserymen) may usually be accepted as successful and valuable varieties.

To examine all current trade-catalogs has been impossible, therefore as fair a representation of them as practicable was selected, and an effort was made to secure catalogs from all those who made a specialty of peonies.

We wish to acknowledge the valuable work of Mr. A. H. Fewkes, the secretary of the American Peony Society, who compiled the references to Kelway's early catalogs and secured the original Japanese names of many varieties which have been obtained from Japan. Each one of his references has been credited to him thus: "Fewkes' MSS." Mr. A. Dessert of Chenonceaux, France, has also compiled much valuable information as to early European varieties, and his list has for the past year or two circulated in typewritten form among the members of the American Peony Society serving as a check-list or guide. Many errors, due to copying, have crept into this list, yet it has been the most reliable list available up to the present time. Every entry in Mr. Desserts' list has been incorporated into this check-list and credit given to Mr. Dessert thus: "Dessert's MSS." These two are the only manuscripts which have been used in compiling this check-list.

It was decided to have only one alphabetical scheme and to combine in it all varieties of herbaceous and tree peonies (moutans). References to the type species are treated as though the specific name was a varietal name as far as alphabetical position is concerned.

This check-list is horticultural in its nature rather than botanical. It differs from a botanical check-list in several points. It is arranged alphabetically; the credit for a given variety is given to the originator (when known) instead of to the first describer as in botanical usage; few references to monographs or strictly botanical works are cited under the name of the species, such being reserved for a later descriptive publication.

Nothing whatever is attempted in this paper toward classification or a working out of the synonomy, for the plants themselves must be made the basis for such work. All names whether synonyms or not are listed and their references given.

In general, catalogues not bearing date of publication were not considered. In some cases the dates were secured through correspondence; in other cases where the list of peony names was manifestly spurious, the catalogue was rejected on the ground that it was not dated.

We wish in this connection to call attention to a point which is often ignored by some of the growers. A varietal name should not be translated, but should retain the language in which it was first published. For example, Duc de Welling- ton should never be written Duke of Wellington. There is a peony originated by Guerin in France and named in French Reine (which means Queen) Victoria. There is also another and very different peony originated by Kelway in England and named in English Queen Victoria. It will thus be seen that a translation of these names would lead to utter and continued confusion. A rigid adherence to this rule in the case of the Japanese and Chinese names would seem to entail a hardship on Europeans and Americans. Therefore for the sake of accuracy of record, these names are entered in this check-list in the original, while the final disposition of such names is a matter for the future deliberation of the Committee on Nomenclature.

Another and very important source of error is the distribution of roots bearing carelessly written and illegible labels. The various shipments to the Cornell Station established this fact beyond dispute. Many of the lots bore labels which took hours of vexing and discouraging work to decipher, and many could not be read with certainty. Other lots, however, bore neatly printed labels which did not leave a shadow of doubt as to their wording. We wish to strongly urge the use of printed or at least legibly written labels, for we are convinced that a large amount of confusion may be avoided by due care in this particular.

Another source of confusion is the common method of attaching the labels. Nearly every box of roots we received contained loose labels in the bottom, and our collection of unnamed plants is therefore needlessly large. It is the common custom to cut off the old stalks about three inches above the crown, and to these smooth and slippery ends the labels are often loosely wired in such a careless manner that there is nothing to prevent their slipping off. In some cases the label is wired to a branch of the root. The roots, however, are very brittle and the branch bearing the label is often broken off.

The best and most satisfactory way to label large peony roots is to use a label with a hole near one end. A stout cord is passed through the label and between the central or main forks of the root, and between the stub of the stalks, fitting closely down between the buds and securely tied. It is practically impossible for a label thus attached to become detached in any way without breaking the cord.

Again, confusion sometimes arises directly in the nursery row itself, and this is often due to the fact that in digging, pieces of the fleshy roots are broken off and being overlooked are left in the soil to sprout up later and cause trouble. On this account it is advisable to rotate the crop and not to follow peonies with peonies the very next year.

We regret to say that a part of the confusion exists as a direct result of the renaming of old varieties. This is done by careless, irresponsible or unscrupulous growers and dealers. These persons represent one of the greatest obstacles to our already too difficult task of bringing order out of chaos; they are a serious handicap to the horticultural progress of the day. Let us illustrate. On working over the trade catalogs, one came to hand which contained in its general list of herbaceous peonies ninety-seven names, no one of which had occurred previously in any of our lists or card indexes. No intimation was made in this catalog that any of these where new varieties, coming out of a clear sky, as it were. We grew suspicious and wrote to the firm for an explanation. Their answer was as guileless as it was interesting. "Certainly," they said, "we bought a large job lot of roots without names and supplied the names ourselves that they might sell better." It was with a large sigh of relief that we noted that their catalog was not dated and on this ground it was at once consigned to the waste-basket. But in cases where the magnitude of this sin is fully realized by the offender, the spurious names may be masked and smuggled into long lists of orthodox names in such a way as to make it impossible in every case to single them out. We find that American catalogs are just as bad in this regard as the European, and the enormity of this offence should in some way be impressed on all those interested in peony growing on both sides of the Atlantic. We are placing this important matter thus boldly before the peony-loving public in order that a sentiment shall be developed which will frown down frauds of this kind. The best we can hope for is an honor system which will prevent any man smirching his own character and injuring his fellow grower by such unprofessional and dishonest action.

The Cornell System of Alphabetical Classification.

As soon as the work of examining the various lists of varieties was begun, it became very evident that there was no uniformity or system whatever in the alphabetical classification commonly used. The first step therefore was to formulate a few rules for guidance which would insure uniformity and make the list easier to use. Our scheme was already worked out and in use at the time P. Rivoires' article appeared on the subject in the "Revue Horticole" (May 1, 1905, p. 214).

If any difficulty is experienced in finding a name in the list, the following rules should be consulted:

RULES OF CLASSIFICATION.

I. When a variety is named for a person, the surname shall be taken as the index word, followed by a comma with all the Christian names, titles, prefixes, etc., following.

Example: Guerin, Madam Jules.

II. Where a variety is not named for a person, the leading noun shall be taken as the index word.

Example: Queen, double Crimson.

III. Where all the words are adjectives or Latin words, they should be retained in the order in which they were originally published. Where the original order has changed from long usage, they should be cross-indexed.

Examples: Old double Red; Nobilissima superba alba.

IV. A possessive noun should follow the modified word with comma.

Example: Perfection, Richardson's.

V. In doubtful cases they should remain in the order in which they were originally published and be cross-indexed when necessary.

Example: Rose Brilliant.

VI. A variety which is named for an exposition at which it is shown, should be indexed under the word "Exposition" followed by the name of the exposition and any other words composing the name.

Example: Exposition de Lille, Triomphe de.

VII. After the surname the initial of the first name should be used for indexing, and if Christian names are all alike, Mr. should precede Mrs.

VIII. A varietal name should remain in the language in which it was first published until officially passed upon by this society.

Note. One star before the name indicates that the variety has been pictured. The star is repeated in citing the reference to the place where it may be found.

Two stars indicate a colored plate.

[Note. Such appalling confusion exists with regard to the spelling of the word Humei that the writer was forced to unify and simplify the spelling as above. If one variety is called Humea and another Humei and another Humeii, etc., great confusion is found to result. Therefore the writer urges the adoption of the above uniform spelling.]
